

INTERNET FILTERING RULES – Public PC Domain

The public PC domain throughout the Library branches is controlled via firewalls and URL filtering which allow and deny access to websites through a series of categories which are illustrated below.

On occasions, individual websites inadvertently fall into a blocked category despite their content being legitimate. When this occurs, a request is sent to the Library IT staff who assess the website and then it is forwarded to the IT department to be allowed. These are denoted below unblocked– “Extra Allowed List.”
